COVER IMAGE: HOOKER FURNITURE

smart. stylish. significant.

As we look toward a brighter 2022, let's take a few moments to reflect on 2021.

It's hard to believe we've been living under the COVID umbrella for almost two years. As consumers put a continued emphasis on their homes, retail and design businesses have experienced record growth, creating unprecedented demand for home furnishings products. However, COVID challenges have pushed inventories to all-time lows and backlogs to all-time highs. While we all felt business was getting back to normal after attending June markets in High Point and Dallas, the Delta variant set us back in the third quarter: manufacturing countries went back into lockdown delaying production, shipping times increased and container prices continued to skyrocket. As a result, the cost of goods also continues to increase.

There is good news however. The expectation today is that consumer buying will continue into 2022, and by then, production and delivery will level out, returning that all-important balance between supply and demand.

At Furniture, Lighting & Decor, we've kept our fingers on the pulse of these industry challenges and so much more. We make it its mission to educate our audience of 40,000 subscribers — retailers, designers, custom builders and architectural firms — through thoughtful content that covers industry trends, business know-how and more every month. Our approach keeps Furniture, Lighting & Decor issues in the hands of our audience longer, thus giving your marketing message a longer shelf life. Our website and daily newsletters serve as additional content drivers and platforms for essential industry news. Our digital audience continues to grow — 35,000 unique visitors per month on the website and 30,000 newsletter subscribers — and we work to ensure your message is delivered to a relevant and engaged audience.

We look forward to working with you on your marketing campaigns in 2022 to reach the right audience for your brand, especially as business begins to return to normal. Be it print, digital or custom, our team is here to help bring your marketing goals to fruition.

We hope you, your families and your companies continue to stay safe.
